Introducing you to your Clinical Nurse Specialist (CNS) for Head & Neck Cancer

Who are the clinical nurse specialists (CNS) for head & neck cancer?

The CNS is a trained nurse specialising in the area of head and neck cancer and the associated issues.

Some CNSs are also known as Macmillan nurses and are closely associated with the national organisation Macmillan Cancer Support. This organisation is devoted to helping patients and their families cope with the diagnosis, treatment and effects of cancer.

In East and North Hertfordshire NHS Trust, the role of CNS includes support for the patient and family when a cancer is suspected but not confirmed.

Your CNS is also known as your key worker.

How can the head & neck CNS help me?

Head and neck cancer nurse specialists are experienced nurses and understand the fears and anxieties that patients and their families have when a suspicion of, or a diagnosis of cancer has been made.

They work closely with you from diagnosis and throughout your cancer journey. They are here to support you and your family and can do this by:

- answering your questions
- advising and supporting you on emotional, physical, financial, social and spiritual issues

- helping you fully explore your treatment choices
- talking through with you any issues concerning your quality of life, before and after treatment
- supporting you on completion of treatment regarding ongoing issues
- liaising and introducing you to other members of the care team who could support and advise you, i.e. dietician, speech and language therapist, district nurse, consultant etc.

Will the hospital CNS visit me at home?

No. They will work very closely with the community Macmillan nurses and district nurses who work in your local area and they will refer you to their care. This means that all your needs will be met by the team closest to your home.

This will only be done with your consent.

Is confidentiality maintained?

Yes. Confidentiality is maintained at all times. We recognise that each patient and their family will have their own personal needs and that these will be different from one person to another.

All your contact with us will be treated with the strictest confidentiality and will only be discussed with another member of the team if you agree.
