The lung cancer clinical nurse specialist

The CNS is a trained nurse specialising in the area of lung cancer and any associated issues. Some CNSs are also known as Macmillan nurses and are closely associated with the national organisation, Macmillan Cancer Support. This organisation is devoted to helping patients and their families cope with the diagnosis, treatment and effects of cancer.

In East and North Hertfordshire Teaching NHS Trust, the role of the CNS includes support for the patient and family when a cancer is suspected but not confirmed. Your CNS is also known as your key worker.

How can the lung CNS help me?

Lung CNSs are experienced nurses and understand the fears and anxieties that patients and their families have when a suspicion of, or diagnosis of cancer has been made. They work closely with you from diagnosis and throughout your cancer journey. They are here to support you and your family by:

- answering your questions.
- advising and supporting you on emotional, physical, financial, social and spiritual issues.
- helping you fully explore your treatment choices.
- talking through with you any worries concerning your quality of life, related to your health before and after treatment
- supporting you on completion of treatment regarding ongoing issues.
- liaising and introducing you to other members of the care team who could support and advise you, e.g. dietician, social worker, district nurse etc.

Will the hospital CNS visit me at home?

No. They work very closely with the community Macmillan nurses, Isobel nurse specialist nurses and district nurses who work in your local area. If necessary, with your consent, they will refer you to their care. This means that all your needs will be met by the team closest to your home.

Is confidentiality maintained?

Yes. All information regarding your tests, diagnosis and treatment plan will be treated in a confidential manner. Only members of the healthcare team involved in your care will have access to information about your diagnosis and treatment. Please see our privacy notice for how we protect patient information:
