What is the role of the skin clinical nurse specialist (CNS)

A CNS is a qualified nurse with the appropriate training, knowledge, skills and expertise who has specialised in skin cancer care.

The CNS is trained to support your emotional, physical, psychological and spiritual needs. They are trained to help patients cope with a skin cancer diagnosis, providing support and guidance to patients, their families and carers.

This can be at the time of diagnosis, during treatment, or at any stage throughout the cancer experience.

Sometimes it is helpful to have someone to talk to as you may have lots of questions or wish to discuss your treatment options when faced with the challenge of a cancer diagnosis.

The CNS works closely with the plastic surgery and dermatology teams, and can act as a useful link between you and other team members at the Lister hospital or your local hospital.

Member of multidisciplinary team (MDT) and your key worker

Whilst you are receiving ongoing treatment the CNS will be your key worker. This means your CNS will co-ordinate your care and can be your first point of contact.

They are a part of the MDT working closely with the other healthcare professionals who look after you.

Information

The CNS can provide you with relevant information regarding your diagnosis and treatment and is happy to explain and discuss this in detail.

Advice and liaison

The CNS will carry out a holistic assessment of your needs and can advise you on a range of issues and refer you to other services who may be able to help:

- District nurse / community Macmillan nurse
- Social worker
- Financial support/advice
- Skin camouflage
- Lymphoedema service
- Other voluntary organisations
